"We have arranged a schedule in good faith for exhibition games with various teams of this vicinity," said John T. Brush, "and we should never consider forfeiting them to play with another team. In addition to that, the New York Club does precede the regular championship contest."

Kling, a Chicago National League catcher, has not reported to the manager at Champaign, Il., where the players are training, and Chance threatens that he will withdraw training privileges if he does not join the other players.

Scanlon, a Brooklyn pitcher, has not signed his contract for 1906, and refuses to do so until he is offered more money. Scanlon admits that the Brooklyn management has raised his salary $100 over that of last year, but considers that he was so poorly paid for his services in 1905 that he is outtiled to something this season to make up.

Otto Williams, who played with the Chicago and St. Louis National League clubs in various seasons, has been engaged by the Washington management to play shortstop this year. Cassidy, the Washington's regular shortstop, who was one of the most promising young infielders in the country, may not recover from the illness which followed a severe uttack of typhoid fever.

On April 21st the Chicago National League Club will be presented with a pennant emblematic of winning the championship of Chicago from the "White Sox."
